Noy widens lead; veep race heats up

LP: Support for Aquino has solidified

IN DEFENSE OF HER SON Noy Villar, 86, breaks into tears during a press conference at her home in BP Homes, Las Pinas City on Monday, to defend her son, Nacionalista Party presidential candidate Manuel Villar, against critics who question his right-to-riches story.

Manny Villar's ma faces media to defend 'poor son'

By Nikka Ocasio

SO BITTER HAS THE RACE for the presidency become that even mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law are being dragged into the fray.

If the camp of Liberal Party standard-bearer Sen. Benigno "Noyoy" Aquino III earlier invoked the courtesy of his late mother, democracy icon Corason Aquino, it was the turn of his eldest rival yesterday to draw strength from his own family.

A frail, wheelchair-bound Curia Villar faced the media yesterday to defend her eldest son, Nacionalista Party (NP) standard-bearer Sen. Manuel Villar, mostly against critics who question his right-to-riches story.

In a press conference held at her BP Resort residence in Las Ovas, the 86-year-old matriarch—usually inquired upon 2007—broke into emotional outbursts. At one point, one of Villar's aides had to restrain her from shouting at the media after the mother began to weep and had difficulty breathing.

"What do you want to know about my son?" Manny Villar asked in Filipino, addressing reporters gathered in her son's living room as well as his son's campaign aides, entourage.

The mother of the late late

THE LEAD OF LIBERAL Party presidential candidate Benigno "Noyoy" Aquino III over Manuel "Manny" Villar Jr. of the Nacionalista Party widened to double digits three weeks before the presidential election, a Social Weather Stations survey, as reported by BusinessWorld, showed.

Aquino's lead over Villar increased from 9 points last month to 22 points in the survey conducted from April 16 to 19, owing to the former's slight-point gain to 38 percent, and the latter's two-point drop to 26 percent.

Among a vote intent of 77 percent (the nation in the 2004 presidential election), Aquino would have won by some 4.7 million votes over Villar had the presidential election been held in the third week of April.

Aquino would have garnered 34.6 million votes of the 39 million votes cast (77 percent of the 50.7 million registered voters) and Villar 16.1 million.

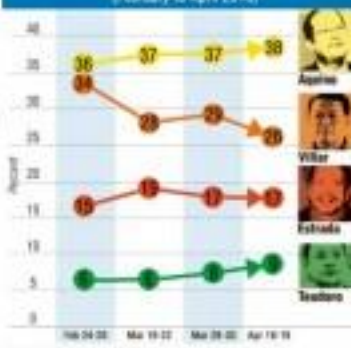

Black propaganda launched against him by the camp of Villar, ranging from a bogus paycheque report to a false rape attack, has backfired on the NP candidates, the LP standard-bearer said.

Aquino said the survey results showed that the case of his reporters had "solidified" his lead in as they felt that their candidate had been attacked "below the belt."

VOTING PREFERENCE FOR PRESIDENT (February to April 2010)

Roxas still on top; Binay edges Legarda

SEN. MANUEL "MANNY" ROXAS II remained the top contender for the vice presidency, while Mahabagat Mayor Jejomar Binay climbed up to second place in a statistical tie with Sen. Loren Legarda, results of the latest Social Weather Stations survey showed.

Of the 2,400 registered voters surveyed from April 16 to 19, 39 percent said they would have voted for Binay for vice president if the elections were held at the time. This is a sharp-point drop from his March rating.

Support for Roxas has been declining since December 2009, but he maintains a considerable lead over his rivals.

"I am deeply grateful to our people who continue to trust and support my candidacy. But assured that we will push for good governance to real the sufferings of our people and lead the nation into greater change," Binay said in a statement.

Roxas gained lost points in 20 percent, placing him in second place with Legarda, who lost a point to 24 percent, gives the survey's margin of error of plus-or-minus two percentage points.

(Special Report)

IN SO PRIZING, AT LEAST 108 families are enclaves in the Philippines as a virtual playground to keep their selves in political power.

What special qualities these privileged few have that enable them to remain, even, sons, daughters, fathers, mothers, granddaughters, grandsons, granddaughters, grandsons, sons, nephews and in-laws to remain in control isn't clear. What is clear, though, is that they are addicted to power.

The provision against political dynasties is one of the most explicit in the 1987 Constitution, but it has also become the most ignored, if not totally ignored. Congress has become populated with like men people the Commission has sought to keep out.

Electoral reform, voters witness a parade of families similar to what their parents had seen in their time, and what their children will likely see in the future.

This becomes known as the issue, starting in Northern Luzon, to see why the Philippine countryside remains the playground of political class.

The Ortigas are still the dominant and most powerful political class in La Union, 309 years after the family patriarch, Joaquin Ortigas, was appointed by the Americans to the province's first Filipino

Electronics firm in Cavite zone to lay off 450 workers

By Marlon Chan
Inquirer Southern Luzon

SAN PEDRO, LAGUNA—IGMSE laid off workers in a Chinese-owned electronics company in Cavite zone sought by Cavite zone management on Monday handed them their walking papers.

The workers of Igmse Group Corp., at the Cavite Economic Zone in Rosario town, said the president would take effect on May 18.

They were facing up to eight the day for the equipment pay and Virginia Reyes, president of the Igmse union, Mangagawa in Igmse Group Corp. Philippines Independent Union, to a global network with the business. The union has 128 members.

The business said to reach the company officials, but no one was available for an interview because they were attending meetings.

Mons and the management announced the workers in the "surprise" meeting, in which the termination documents were presented.

"The well-planned of some of us were concerned, probably to prevent communication from inside, they also threatened to include in inside the factory if we would not sign," she said. If yes, Mons said the president would sign the papers, she said they were allowed to leave the factory premises and decided to hold protest at the front gate of the company zone.

That week, the union filed a petition for a government-mediated labor dispute resolution and legal proceedings at the National Conciliation and Mediation Board to issue orders in Cavite. The first hearing was set for Tuesday.

"We were surprised they were surprised. They management probably had heard about the hearing something that's why they called for us today," she said. Mons.

The company, which manufactures parts of cell phones and cameras, is running its 300-strong workforce by half due to financial losses.

"The 30000 Department of Labor and Employment has advised companies that if they are facing losses, they should first try various downsizing and other cost-cutting measures before finally resorting to termination," said Dennis Aquino of the labor union led by Pardo ng Manggagawa sa Cavite.

"In the case of this, the workers would still go to work time shifts until recently," he said. Labor regional director Rocco de Dios said the termination was not a case of illegal dismissal.

"Orders from their mother companies were really pulled out, they (company) had no choice but to lay off some of their workers," Marston said.

He said the company had agreed to pay the workers for the remaining days of service until May 18, among other benefits.

Mons added company had offered them 10 days per year of service compensation pay.

Poor teens tutor poor kids as summer job

By Thomas D'Angel
Inquirer Central Luzon

MANILA, PHILIPPINES—With the help of teacher volunteers, 15-year-old students in a low-income area in Manila are helping out in a tutoring program for poor kids in the area.

The program, called "Tutoring for the Poor," is a joint effort of the Department of Education (DepEd) and the local government of Manila.

The program is designed to help poor kids in the area improve their academic performance and develop their leadership skills.

The program is open to all poor kids in the area, regardless of their age or gender. The program is run by a group of teacher volunteers who are trained by the DepEd.

The program is a voluntary effort. The teacher volunteers are not paid for their services. The program is a joint effort of the DepEd and the local government of Manila.

STUDENT students work on their assignments under the Special Program for the Employment of Students of the provincial government in Pangasinan.

On April 11, the project is done at the 25th session of Pangasinan.

With every task, handing down children each, almost 2,000 children are being asked before classes open in June. The initiative runs for 20 days, six hours a day.

Each class costs P25.00 a day or P500.00 a month. At least 60 percent of that amount comes from the provincial government. The 40 percent is paid by the Department of Labor and Employment.

The Alternative Learning System of the Department of Education prepared the study, but the local government of Pangasinan is the main partner in the program. The program is a joint effort of the DepEd and the local government of Pangasinan.

DAR affirms farmers' rights in SCTEx feud

CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO

The Department of Agriculture here in General Santos City upheld the right of 82 farmers over a disputed 364-hectare land in a court case of the local Clark-Tanlar Expressway (SCTEx) in Pangasinan.

The conflict, which dragged for 13 years, ended in Justice Department, DAR regional director, denied the landowner's application to acquire the land from the concept of the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program (CARP).

Insurance's order was consistent with another order it issued in September 2008.

12-hour fire in QC destroys 800 houses

By Julie M. Morales and Bianca Sol, interns

A MAN DIED WHILE THREE others were injured in a 12-hour fire that raged from Sunday afternoon until early yesterday morning on E. Rodriguez Jr. Avenue in Quezon City.

The lone fatality was identified by police investigators as Audine Trinidad, 12, who sat in front of the house that burned down in Barangay Dominguez, Taguig. The family, however, did not reach his home.

Trinidad said Trinidad was apparently drunk and asleep when the fire broke out.

Ateneo (Manila) (APC)

Trinidad-Cabillon said the blaze started around 8:00 p.m. and took 1,000 families homeless as it spread for more than 12 hours.

The injured were identified as Anthony Ave, who suffered from lack of oxygen, Ronald Pilla, who sustained burns on his arms and Vicente Alamo, who suffered second-degree burns on his left hand.

Finger-pointing

Cabillon and two neighbors, Cynthia Soriano and Belinda Zepeda, had pointed to each other as the cause of the house when the fire started.

He added that he was looking for reports that the fire was started by an electrical store at the house of either Soriano or Zepeda.

However, Cabillon said he expects that an illegal electrical connection may have caused the fire.

Both Soriano and Zepeda would be invited by the Quezon City Bureau of Fire Protection either for questioning, he added.

The fire began at around 8:00 p.m. on Sunday and soon reached back into the streets. Firemen were able to bring it under control at around 7:30 p.m. but it was only put out at 4:22 a.m., preventing CA from

The damage to property was estimated at around P20 million.

NCRPO reports decline in Metro crime rates

By Mike Morales

CRIME RATES IN METRO MANILA DROPPED in the first quarter of the year, a positive development that Director Roberto Rosales attributed to the election gun ban being implemented by the Commission on Elections (Comelec) in coordination with the police.

In a statement, Rosales, his second Capital Region Police Office (CRPO) chief, said that the decline in the number of rape, car theft, robbery, physical injuries and murder cases were also due to the programs being implemented by his men.

"The NCRPO has positively gained so much in its effort to rid the metropolis of crimes but there is still a long way to go. The best assurance that we could have for a peaceful and orderly election is that we limit crime rates and the opposition."

He said in a statement in

Based on an analysis of crime incidence in the first three months of the year, robbery incidents decreased by 30 percent to 702 cases, compared to 1,011 during the same period in 2013.

The same trend was reported in car theft incidents which decreased by 18 percent to 129 cases from January to March this year compared to 152 last year.

For physical injuries cases, a 74 percent drop was reported this year with 508, down from 1,034 last year.

The police also noted an eight percent drop in murder and rape cases.

Rosales said the decrease in crime rates were due to the increased police visibility program for implementation during the month of the election period.

However, the NCRPO said that it would continue to push for the finalization of several laws to strengthen the metropolis law enforcement.

As proven, several cases placed at strategic locations in different cities are being monitored by the NCRPO in its day-to-day tactical operations across in Camp Rigdon, Manila.

Most tourists stranded by volcanic ash home soon

LONDON—ABOUT 70,000 TOURISTS STRANDED BY the volcanic ash crisis will be home by Monday following thousands could be back for nearly another week, European airlines and governments officials said.

Several air carriers already have been asked by Italy's Aviazione Civile to postpone flights to Italy until the ash crisis is under control.

Mark Taper, executive of British Air, which represents British travel agents and airlines, said that about 100,000 stranded British tourists should have been returned home by Monday morning, about 15,000 more will likely return on Friday, he said.

"While most flights are back in normal, and most stranded British passengers will be back by the end of this weekend, there will still be a high level of disruption in some destinations," Taper said.

Airlines said about 2,000 Belgians are stuck mostly in Egypt and Tunisia and 2,000 French tourists in various destinations. Austrian Airlines and passengers are stuck in Thailand, while some French tourists are stuck in Bangkok, Taper said.

Some airlines reported no problems with stranded tourists.

Many Icelandic airports are closed and though authorities say flights will be resumed in a few days, they are not sure.

More than 100 tourists landed in Iceland. Red Cross and other agencies are on the ground to help clear ash from farms and houses close to the volcano site, Icelandic Civil Protection Agency said.

"The quantity of the volcanic ash is steadily decreasing," the agency said in a statement. But it added that there are "no indications that the eruption is coming to an end."

Scientists said this week that the volcano is unlikely to erupt in any more but has begun to erupt in European airports, as the ash plume is now too small to reach the stratosphere and because winds have changed direction.

Swedish Airlines said passengers will be sent to fly to Stockholm and other destinations including Bangkok will be home within days.

"We are confident that by Monday all passengers will be returned to Europe," Swedish spokesman Per Stenroos said.

In Belgium, foreign airlines spokesman Patrick Debaux said more travelers should be on the way on Monday at the latest. "There are still some problems in Belgium and the United States but we expect a lot of departures today and tomorrow," he said.

Top nut to crack

BROWN BARS AS FOR THE business volume of bank bonds, Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp. is no longer a top priority.

And the dramatic change in place in less than a year. Nearly the long string of bank closures since 1988, including the recent bankrupt ones called "Laguna," thanks in part to the fact that "they" in Los Angeles, based PDC to face hard choices.

For example, starting from the Laguna issue, PDC would have to consider the fact that the PDC shares for it to become more solid to similar situation in the future.

I have a little piece of good news. Today, the deposit insurance fund of PDC amounts to P10 billion.

That means, in the past, there has been no PDC in pay for their insured deposits in banks. This leaves just in case.

Anyway, as an indication of how well-run PDC has become, it even realized a profit of about P400 million last year.

In other words, PDC is doing well, thank you. And this despite all the troubles from those insolvent banks in Laguna.

IN LATE 1994, as we all know, the president of the Laguna group collapsed, leaving behind a mess of insolvent banks and investors in misery.

That year, PDC's collected close to P400 million in deposits from 12 banks of the Laguna group. In just one day, 30 investors number of the "Laguna" with its assets and liabilities.

As it's the Laguna group and not enough people in the area, PDC is in fact in contact with 12 corporate bank closures in the same year.

And as PDC had to withdraw from deposit accounts in the same year, it was forced to close down 200,000 in the same year.

But how to withdraw from the Laguna group? And how to withdraw from the Laguna group? And how to withdraw from the Laguna group?

compared the top executive of the Laguna group, Jose Romualdo, underwent a baptism of fire. He assumed the position in early 1994, a few months before the Laguna group collapsed.

Starting his experience in that troubled year in banking today, Romualdo said that PDC could not remain a passive player in the financial sector.

Part of all, when banks failed, it was PDC that took the hit. If the company had taken it away, only in the same year, it would have been a disaster.

And as Romualdo went to Congress for some time, he was forced to withdraw from the Laguna group.

ANYWAY, in his first year in office, he was forced to withdraw from the Laguna group.

But, perhaps it did not hurt PDC that Romualdo had a reputation in the House of Representatives who happened to be only the speaker.

Anyway, with changes in its chairman, PDC was able to cross the deposit insurance coverage from P200,000 to P400,000 per depositor.

Not only that, from now on, PDC does not have to go back to Congress for further increase. Now it only needs the approval of the President of the Republic.

All right, it is hard to say which, between Congress and Malacañan, is the tougher one to crack.

Let's just say it may be easier to talk to our own than to those who are not our own.

have any idea what PDC is all about.

TO ME, nevertheless, the most important changes in the PDC charter involved some structural changes.

For one, the company needed some breathing spell in its business. It got a two-year moratorium. It also had to come out of the new charter authorized.

It is now a bank that was approved by the national government.

PDC now has power in some of the special banks. It can now, then, the company may now examine deposits as long as there is evidence of "sound and solvent" banking practice.

With or not, without "Laguna" scenario in the making?

Asean all set to ink 'open skies' deal

By Paula C. Manaloto

THE PHILIPPINES AND THAI have been in the region are in the process of ending a long-standing ban that will allow flights between Bangkok and Manila.

Under the new "open skies" deal, the number of flights to a certain point will be decided based on the demand of airlines operating in the area. The deal is currently being discussed by the transport ministers of the 10 members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean).

In the Philippines, government is ready to sign the deal, the Civil Aviation Authority Board (CAAB) said. Acting Transportation and Communications Secretary Asad Lomera recently was gives the authority to sign the deal.

The formal multilateral agreement on passenger services will open up airports outside of capital cities, CAAB Secretary Executive Director Perseus Pambuan said in a statement.

In the interim, Asad has an existing open skies deal that covers only major airports, or just Manila for the Philippines.

The new deal opens up all other international airports in the region. In the Philippines, these include Manila, Clark, Zamboanga, Cebu, and Iloilo.

Under the schedule, the deal may be signed by June 29. Perseus said.

Currently, the concept is being given around the region to be signed by the transport ministers of each member nation in the region.

The deal is meant to encourage trade among member nations in the region. It is also seen as a step toward the establishment of the Asean Free Trade Area.

The new deal will also allow local airlines to more easily expand their routes.

Representatives and officials in the region are also close to signing an open skies deal with China.

"We have been invited to meet with Chinese officials in Bangkok (from May 13 to May 14) to discuss details about the deal," he said.

The group aims to discuss the details of the deal, which will open up flights between China and the region.

The rights will allow an airline of one country to land in a second country, pick up passengers and fly on to a third country where the passengers may then depart.

Under the deal, airlines may have to fly to a third country before returning to their home country.

It is also part of the Q-Link Agreement, which allows airlines to fly to a third country before returning to their home country.

PNOC-EC income down

By Aris B. Bata

PHILIPPINE NATIONAL OIL CORPORATION (PNOC) reported a 41 percent drop in its net income to P1.1 billion last year from the previous year's P1.9 billion.

The decline in the net income is due to the drop in the price of oil and the drop in the price of gas.

In a regulatory filing, PNOC-EC said revenue in 2009 dropped by 21 percent to P6.8 billion from the previous year's P8.6 billion.

The decline in the net income is due to the drop in the price of oil and the drop in the price of gas.

Magical experience in Ciudad Verdadero

I HAVE VISITED CRUDD VEEDAH, the sacred soil equidistant hill at the border of Nanpan and Lushan towns in Quanzhou Province, about a dozen times before. And I have had a number of extraordinary experiences there. But the trip I made there on April 30-1 was nothing close to magical and awe-inspiring.

I accompanied four different personality types of scientists, namely: Karen, a British biologist based in Bangalore, Mysore, a former social researcher of the United Nations based in Pondicherry, Julie, a biochemist and art of living instructor from Coimbatore de Olay City; and Michelle, a medical doctor and spiritual seeker. Of the four women, Mysore was the most skeptical and analytical of them.

Chickadee-like downy has a small, important, natural open and obvious which invites individuals and characteristics have discovered. There are, for example, two big headwaters in the young from the spring with medicinal or health-giving water. Upon placing back hands on the side of these headwaters while maintaining standing up, many felt strong pulsations, as if the headwaters were alive and breathing.

But each person experienced these feelings in different ways. They experienced something like an emotional earthquake. From before Julie reached the big room, she was already crying. And upon reaching it, she collapsed and appeared dead for a minute or two. At the upper boundary, Karen must have come and stayed awhile.

The next step in our journey in the second place was the small spring of water a few yards from the tree boulders. An Ojibwa, the place's owner, told me the spirits answered all those who would come to the spring to wash their whole body with its water.

At first there was a feeling of reluctance to make ourselves so the subject, until, finally, the British folk singer, said, "Let's do it all together." And we are.

Like all felt that we were not doing this for the first time, and we had in fact done the same thing so many times before in previous incarnations in Egypt. It was an awesome experience for all of us and we spontaneously hugged each other in gratitude.

After this, we all felt a strong sense of unity with our members, although we hardly by the beginning. There were more important events that made up our interconnecting groups. For example, on the way to the Circus Labyrinth, when the sun has already set and darkness enveloped us, Mylene saw something scary on the grass in front walking on us. All stopped after she shouted, "Did you see that?" She pointed to something which I first thought to be a cat but it was not a cat, it was a strange-looking ball! And it was 'going with' without any trace of us.

The women felt a very strong sense of peace and quiet as the Labyrinth, which is really a kind of walking meditation. This Labyrinth is located on the highest portion of the hill and Ari Casapelo reported seeing the wisest Greek god Zeus there. The sight we saw there, we did not see any more, and which is unidentified flying objects: the sky looked ominous with a heavy rain brightly shining down on us. Kary said all her deepest questions in life were answered after walking through the labyrinth and Michelle nodded several times as we walked.

Art Calomiris, the Executive and owner of Ciudad Vieja, was intrigued at what happened to the group in that place. "This confirms all that I've experienced and all that I have been told by the spirit. This is indeed the city of death."
